Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 3-8, and 10-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Griffiths.

Griffiths shows, figure 10 and abstract, a method for providing a usage pattern for a customer of an intelligently-switched telecommunications system. The usage pattern provides historical information concerning the customer's use of the telecommunications system. One embodiment includes communicating either with the telecommunications system or with a data network and receiving a query for the customer's usage pattern. The query could originate from the customer using a computer device operating on the data network or from the customer using a telephonic/wireless device operating on the telecommunications system. The usage pattern is acquired from either a service control point operating on the telecommunications system or a database operating on the data network. The usage pattern is then communicated to the customer. The abstract and figure 10 show the steps of storing, informing and resetting.

In reference to claim 3, the user request the information.

In reference to claim 4, abstract, whereby the customer uses the computer device, or the telephonic/wireless device, to access the usage pattern (controlling arrangements for how to communicate).

In reference to claim 5, the "unused minutes remaining shows the threshold".

In reference to claim 6, column 1, line 47, show that customers can curtail their use knowing that they are close to the threshold. (Customer controlling the parameter of time.)

In reference to claim 7, figure 10 is a display.

In reference to claims 8 and 10-14, they are substantially similar to claims 1, 3-7.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Griffiths in view of Lewis et al.

Art Unit: 3627

Griffiths, as applied above, shows all of the limitations of the claims except for specifying peak and off-peak allotments

Lewis et al. teaches a method for monitoring cellular telephone usage. Column 1, lines 17-19, teaches the use of peak and off-peak allotments in a telephone package deal in order to provide cheaper options to its customers.

Based on the teaching of Lewis et al., it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to modify Griffiths system to incorporate monitoring for packages with peak and off-peak allotments in order to provide improved service to customers of all different plans.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Byrd et al. shows a system of interest.
